Art Unit: 1765

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103© and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 6, 7, and 9 to 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fabray et al in view of Hayashida et al and Lampert et al.

The Fabray et al reference teaches a method of polishing and oxidizing a silicon wafer. A silicon wafer is first polished by standard polishing techniques. The wafer is removed from the polishing holder prior to oxidization. Then a different aqueous solution is applied to the wafer. The solution contains an oxidization agent and alkali compound, note col. 1. The sole difference between the instant claims and the prior art is the specific compounds and the timing of the process steps. However, the Hayashi et al reference teaches the claimed alkali compounds used on silicon substrates, the compounds can be organic and inorganic. The Lampert et al reference teaches that the steps of the process to be done as soon as possible. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the Fabray et al reference by the teachings of the Hayasiha et al and Lampert et al references to use specific compounds in order to prevent the introduction of impurities onto the cleaned substrate and to remove from the polishing holder upon completion of polishing in order to prevent impurities as taught by the Fabray et al reference.

Response to Applicants' Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed September 19, 2002 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant's declaration filed on September 19, 2002 under 35 USC 1.132 has been fully considered and not deemed persuasive. The results shown are not over the closest prior art of record, the Fabray et al reference. The Fabray et al reference does teach the oxidization step being done after the wafer is removed from the polishing plate. Thus, the results are well within the skill of the art. Further, the examiner is merely relying on the Lampert et al reference to teach the art recognized need to oxidize the wafer in a swift manner.

Applicant's argument concerning the Lampert et al reference is noted. However, the examiner is citing the reference to show that one of ordinary skill in the art knows that timing and speed are essential in the oxidization of a polished wafer. The Lampert et al reference thus merely modifies the Fabray et al reference by teaching speed is important and not to wait a period of time between polishing and oxidizing.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
